March 21, 2008 (Spring Valley, NY) - Focused on counter IED initiatives and serving first responders and the EOD community, a new site hosted by American Innovations, Inc. is now available: www.ExplosivesDetection.com launched in March 2008 the site showcases products and services specific to the needs of those tasked with counter IED missions. The narrow focus of this site is intended to increase first responder and EOD personnel's ability to find relevant information that can help their efforts to deter, detect, defeat, identify, and neutralize threats from improvised explosives devices.

Most recently American Innovations, Inc introduced their Explosives Detectors line which includes the XD-2i and the XD-3i. The units have been tested by and/or demonstrated to federal, state, and local agencies along with members of every branch of the US Armed Services. The XD-2i and XD-3i are two explosives detectors that have proven to be a tremendous advancement in explosives detection capabilities and American Innovations will continue to improve their detection and identification capabilities to help first responders and the EOD community counter evolving IED threats. Government, Military, and EOD test reports are available along with extensive references. Contact American Innovations at 845-371-3333 for supporting documentation and reference requests.
